Cluj - Napoca

Multilingualism
Multiculturality
Autonomy

The Babeş-Bolyai University is the oldest academic institution in Romania, which embodies the entire academic tradition of Transylvania, inaugurated with the Jesuit College founded in Cluj by Prince Stephan Bathory in 1581 .

The Babeş-Bolyai University brings together the cultural, scientific, and religious traditions of Transylvania.

The Babeş-Bolyai University has developed a multilingual and multicultural educational programme according to the legislation in force in Romania and according to European values.

The symbols and inscriptions in the languages of the ethnic communities are present at the Babeş-Bolyai University.

The system of multicultural organization set up by the Charter of the Babeş-Bolyai University (1995) ensures complete education in Romanian, Hungarian, German, as well as Jewish studies at all levels of academic study: bachelor, master, doctorate, long distance and adult education. This system provides, through adequate regulations, the autonomy of the Romanian, Hungarian, and German lines of study and the right of the lines of study to draw up and implement own decisions regarding human resources, international cooperation, scientific research, and to publish in Romanian, Hungarian or German.

The regulations adopted by the Babeş-Bolyai University were drawn up taking into account the best interest of Romanians, of Hungarians, of Germans, of Jewish people, as well as the legislation of the Romanian state, the criteria of performance and professionalism.

The multicultural system transformed Babeş-Bolyai University into the largest and most complex university in Romania. Never before have so many Romanians studied at the main university in Transylvania; never before have so many Hungarians studied here; never before have there been more opportunities to study in German; never before has the history and the culture of the Jewish people been so broadly covered in academic circumstances. Never before has there been such a diversified range of specializations.

The multicultural system set up at the Babeş-Bolyai University has been evaluated positively by qualified international bodies - The OSCE High Commissioner on National Minorities, Salzburg Seminar, European University Association.

The multicultural system has been appreciated positively by prestigious universities in Hungary, with whom Babeş-Bolyai University has agreements of interuniversity cooperation, and with whom it organizes regular meetings to establish and evaluate key features of the cooperation programmes.

The recommendations made by The OSCE High Commissioner on National Minorities with a view to improving the multicultural system have been fully included in the university Charter, and have been constantly implemented since 2001.

The Babeş-Bolyai University constantly promotes professionalism and competitiveness for the integration in the European Higher Education Area. Up to this day there has never been any complaint of ethnic discrimination. Every international evaluation has shown positive conclusions.
